PEAFOWL

BHAVANA K BAGLODI

Peafowl is a common name for three bird species in the genera Pavo and Afropavo within the tribe Pavonini of the famil Phasianidae, the pheasants and their allies. Male Peafowl are referred to as peacocks and female peafowl are referred to as peahens, even though peafowl of either sex are often referred to colloquially as "peacock." The two Asiatic species are the blue or Indian Peafowl originally of the Indian Subcontinent and the green peafowl of the South East Asia. The one South African species is the Congo Peafowl, native only to the Congo Basin. Male Peafowl are known for their piering calls and their extravagant plumage. The later is especially prominent in the Asiatic species, which have an eye-spotted "tail" or "train" of covert feathers, which they display as part of a courtship ritual. This display shows the Peafowl philatelic materials.
