

Fragrant Stamps of India (2019)

Indian perfumery dates to the Indus Valley Civilization up to the Mauryan period. The great poet Kalidas has referred to the fragrance in his plays. The perfumes of Persia and Arabia, along with the ancient Indian traditions go back to the Vedas. In India, the old city of Delhi, Agra, Lucknow, and Hyderabad still have perfumers whose families had been engaged in perfumery. This display is pertaining to ancient perfumes of India such as Jasmine, Sandalwood, Orange Blossom, and Agarwood.
